

California Proposition 65, also known as the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986, is legislation which requires warnings be given to California consumers when they might be exposed to chemicals identified by the State of California as causing cancer or reproductive harm. The intent is to help California consumers make informed decisions about their exposures to these chemicals arising from the products they use. The California Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment (OEHHA) is the administrator of the California Proposition 65 program, and publishes and maintains the list of chemicals, which includes more than 850 chemicals. OEHHA has adopted new regulations, effective August 30, 2018, to provide the following warning for products linked to this page:
